All the education one gets is not from books; nor is all business training found in the class room.

For that reason a large city, especially one where you may intend to work later on, offers advantages far greater than the disadvantage of distance.

You have an opportunity to observe business and office workers, and to meet and learn from people coming from other cities, states and even other countries.

Then, when you combine this with attending an up-to-date business and secretarial school with 74 years of educational experience—and one that has a Placement Department that has many more calls than graduates — you receive a business training that assures you a job and later advancement.

The Hill

The young man walked beside his silent father,
Walked through woods of smiling peace and quiet,
There beneath the branches green with leaves
Making dark the woodland path they trod,
Shutting out all hint of human world;
On they went—a father and a son,
On and up until they stood atop
A lofty hill around which lay their world,
And they could see the gently swaying boughs
Make a living sea of verdant green.
The wind was one of soft and gentle origin,
And tossed a lock of tawny, curly hair
Across the sun browned forehead of the youth.
It was a peaceful place:

The young man spoke:
"No doubt," (he said) "You can remember when
There were much more of settings such as this,
Of land and country filled with quiet places,
Where civilization's touch had not yet come
To bring with it, in place of peace and quiet,
The cruelty and avarice of man.
You - - - even you - - - although so very close
To this - - - our present state of modernity,
Had no fears to meet the world alone,
Had no fears of going through your life
Without at least a try at honest labour;
Had no fears of plunging into war
To satisfy the vain and mad conceit
Of men across the sea who seek for power:
My generation faces such."

The father
Sighed and put his arm around his son
With gesture full of care and understanding.
Turned the youth, and filled his eyes with his,
An then, his face once more aglow with what
He saw therein, he gave his glance again
Back to the scene below: the youth's eyes followed His.

And now the father broke the still.
"My son," (he said) and pointed to the green,
"All this is yours to have and love and cherish,
All this for you and for your sons to come;
For generations have your forbears kept it
Clean, and for the most-part, full of hope:
However black the future seems to be,
However dark the path of life appears,
My son, remember, they too lived their lives
In times of darkness, fear and sore distress.
Your Revolutionary fathers lived
In constant fear of loss of life and commerce,
And so it's been throughout this mighty world;
Fear has done his work with evil calm,
Crept into the smallest of the openings
In man's puissant suit of armor—Faith!
And bored down there within his very soul
To be an ever present source of trouble.
But in all times when dark has been the future
Of a nation, have there risen from
Obscure places in that nation's core
The men who carried out to high perfection
Every thought and every high ideal:
Those were men who went ahead and did
And lived to watch their work bear ripened fruit.
Those were men who laughed when scoffers jeered,
And carried on and worked, and toiled—and won!
You say, my son, that all those days are dead,
That you have not the chance your fathers had,
That you will never climb to any heights
And blaze your name across our country's annals,
But can't you see that you have all to gain
By holding to ideals of men who knew
That this would be a country full of hope,
And not one full of sorrow and despair.
You have your chance to make from what you have
A life of happiness and symphony;
Success if you but try, is bound to come:
But that success is not all due to working,
For in your working you must have that spark--
That quality which is so hard to catch—
The quality that all the men who moulded
This, our land, must first, perforce, have captured.
That spark is nothing more than simple faith:
Catch it—hold it—then the world is yours!"

JOHN B. LEWIS.

Class History

Many have said that in history there is no record of time and events which is so human and innately truthful as a diary. Strange as it may seem, in the last three world-shaking years I have kept a record of our life at Waltham Senior High School. Thus, with the aid of excerpts from that diary, I shall now attempt to recall to you the swift-moving history of the class of 1939, the class that tried so hard to be different. Since I quote directly from the leaves of the diary itself, all language and grammar included therein must needs be excused. Any relations to persons living or dead is purely on my mother's side.

We turn the dusty page of the first little volume entitled, "1936-1937". We read the first notation:

"Wednesday, Sept. 10, 1936,

Well, diary, trotted off expectantly to—guess where—High School! And, boy, whatta place! They've built two new wings around the main building and there are more rooms and teachers than anyone dared to imagine. The first day the congenial instructors handed out books, and one kind old soul advised our gang thoughtfully to brush up for review exams. Went home today in a mixed state of mind."

That "mixed state of mind" was the sudden knowledge that five hundred and forty-nine school days of this were to follow until distant graduation. My mind, however, was soon changed, and as sophs set their neglected brain-power to action, the days picked up momentum with the interesting activities to be followed. Here is a stray paragraph of first impressions:

"Here our names might be dust for all we appear to upperclassmen. However, the principals might easily be called 'princes of pals'. The rooms here are hard to find. While looking for Room 312, I went slightly astray and watched the janitor operate the boiler-room for ten interesting minutes."

Notwithstanding the initial attitude of our Seniors, the friendship of many was to be our future blessing. The days flew by. On a summer-like Saturday in September, we watched our football boys do battle for the first time as real rooters. Krol and Company, nice fellows all, steam-rollered all opposition until that black Thursday in November.

Days rolled by surprisingly free from monotony. On October 27, our new gym was thrown open for another year. I have noted:

"Today the great army of rarely washed (ladies excluded) met its Waterloo, because the new showers are working at top efficiency. Rumors of soap to be donated have brought strenuous protests."

All this was great fun, but the class of '39, soon knowing its need for organization, elected its class officers for the year. They were William Pendergast, president; Alan Davis, vice-president; Justine Smith, secretary; Muriel Medina, treasurer; and Harris Greene, auditor. I have simply written:

"The officers look O. K. except for the auditor. He looks like a slick customer. I think I'll slip a word to him about the right attitude to take."

But soon the activity and voice of the Sophomores began to be heard. On December 16, the Sophomore Dramatic Group gave a capably acted play, earning the applause of the august Dramatic Club.

Christmas and the New Year came on sounds of merriment and joy. On return after the vacation, the attitude of the servile sophs became more confident and optimistic towards their seniors and their future. They really "belonged" to their school. Sophomores loyally cheered the Shaughnessy brothers and their virtual monopoly of basketball, hockey, and baseball, all sports of which were waged with success through winter and spring. The 122-minute hockey marathon with Framingham intrigued lovers of slow-motion skating, and the eventual victory was fervently blessed by all.

The sophs widened their scope of activity. They invaded radio in a dramatization of Charles Goodyear and his life. In the midst of quavering voices the automobile tire was once again invented.

The now smooth-functioning class chose a highly significent motto, "Experientia Docet", although half the class, Latin students included, were obliged to ask for the translation. There is briefly noted:

"Thursday, March 11, 1937:

The motto, "Experientia Docet", at this time seems to mean that the teacher knows a little more than you think she doesn't."

The class of '39 had a quick taste of adult life when the much-postponed Sophomore Social was held in the gym. A short entry:

"Friday, March 19, 1937,

The affair was a lot of fun. The boys and girls, girls especially, are very shy, but I think they'll change with time." They've changed! !

Time irresistibly flowed through the happy months. May came and with it the Junior Prom. But on the notices, regrets were in order, for Sophomores could not attend. Come to think of it, there was no mention of regrets. June came, and the Seniors, with watery eyes (I think it rained that day), bade us aufwiedersehen. For a few delirious days we had more room and leisure. Then vacation. In red pencil, diary says:

"So now we're Juniors. And here's vacation. Thanks to the Lord!"

Of course in mid-August the tunes of joy turned to whistles of impatience to get back to school again.

Three hundred and fifty high-and-mighty Juniors dusted off varying amounts of grey matter that fall, and lorded the premises in a manner that would have won the plaudits of their predecessors. Once again they set themselves to business, and elected their new class officers: Winslow MacDonald, president; Regina Ring, vice-president; Muriel Medina, secretary-treasurer; and Harris Greene, auditor.

The football season was on us. The lads of the Junior class playing on the squad played well, and although not one of the most successful, still the season was a sportsmanlike, hard-fought one. The girls had their innings in field hockey. The MIRROR staff performed new miracles by getting out one of its most successful issues. The flow of time quickened, and the Class of 1939 went through the old year into the new on the swelling tide. Appropriately enough at the bottom page of the diary, which is standard, there reads the following truism: "Today is the tomorrow we looked towards, from which yesterday is only a memory."

The hockey team swept to win the Brown Memorial Trophy before the admiring eyes of their urging classmates. Golf, basketball, and baseball became the cynosure of students' eyes. The girls of '39 emphasized their finesse in the basketball and bowling brackets. Spring came and with it the operetta, "The Royal Vagabond". Studies were blithely abandoned during the production of this two-night hit. The Vagabond, his Anitza, Chefcheks, and courtiers were given a royal welcome by the audience.

Then the Junior Prom, THE event of the Junior year. Under soft lights, string orchestra, and thirty-six repeats of "Heigh-Ho", the dance was a real dance from all view-points, thanks to the able committee in charge.

With amazement, the Juniors watched their congenial superiors graduate, a few short days later. Were they now those people of dignified countenance, of such god-like mien? Were they now Seniors? They were!

They returned in the fall, a bit tanned and very mature in action and thought. There is noted:

"We began to feel the responsibility placed upon us by our elders. Perhaps the homework isn't all a matter of needless bother. Perhaps we're here for something." These facts, patiently impressed by teachers for three years, now began to penetrate and make sense. It was the beginning of manhood and womanhood.

The High School football team, captained and predominated by Seniors, turned a black outlook into a fall campaign of unexpected brilliance and success, the last game making them heroes of the first magnitude. I have:

"Thursday. November 24,

Today half Waltham and myself sat down and actually enjoyed a Thanksgiving dinner for the first time in three cheerless years."

The girls, never to be outdone, trounced their opponents in field hockey with vehemance.

Class officers were installed for the last time. Winslow MacDonald was re-elected president; Clara Viscogliosi, vice-president; Frances Carlson, secretary-treasurer; and Douglas MacArthur, auditor.

Once again Christmas, the New Year, and then the Senior Dance, that dance of dances in the Senior Calendar. Once again, soft spot-lights and smooth, scintillating music by the rhymical Rhythm Barons. The dance was perfection itself. The financial report may, of course, be overlooked with a wave of the hand, although four cents profit on ice-cream sounded too much like careful arithmetic, something incongruous to dance committees.

The hockey and basketball teams, representing the talent of the Senior class, had very satisfying seasons indeed. The senior girls' basketball array showed finesse in their sweep of their schedule. The baseball team waged war with excellent hitting power. Election of Picture Committee came as a distinct shock to those who were unaware of the rushing torrent of time.

The Senior Play, "Skidding", brought to the enthusiastic audience the Judge Hardy family with all its human appeal, climaxes, and adventures of the group. with the irresponsible Andy in his glory. The Thespian exploits of the entire cast, the hard-working committee and self-effacing Clara Viscogliosi, whose cheerful and capable chairmanship made difficulties vanish, all deserved every bit of praise they received and more. The diary comments on the play itself:

"If the audience only knew the effort exerted to make telephone bells ring on time, the financial strain to buy Andy's conservative underclothes, and the temptation resisted to eat the candy instead of selling it, they would have enjoyed the play threefold."

The school witnessed the completion and occupation of the newest addition of five rooms. Although promised for last Fall, they were welcomed even at this late date for relief of the cramped housing problem in the school and for Mr. Hodge's precious "north light."

The next few weeks were devoted to sitting for photographs, and the school was a merry Bedlum of comparing and exchanging pictures and glossies with wild abandon.

But wait—what is this? The last page—Impossible! But it's true. Here's the last entry. The ink is scarcely dry.

"June 8, 1939,

Well, diary, you're ended. Tomorrow we are graduated and then it's our own future in our own hands. It is a great temptation to look back to our younger years and mourn the passing of youthful days. But we should not look back. Our day is today, not the yesterdays. With "Experientia Docet", a good motto, we have learned with experience, and we have benefited by the experiences of others imparted to us. With that, we shall be a little armed, at least, to face a world of reality. These past years have been happier than one could ever realize. I hope that the advantage of these happy days will serve to some fine end, if only a pleasant memory. The flood tide of time seems to have carried us to the sea. May we reach a happy harbor safely and with our lives usefully lived.

That was the last page. I closed the diary softly and whistled "Waltham", off-key, as I tied my green tie. Nice knot, eh?

HARRIS GREENE, 1939.

The Last Will and Testament of the Class of 1939

Know all men by these presents, that we, the Class of 1939, being of sound and disposing mind and memory, and wishing to direct in what manner our estate shall be disposed of after our departure, do make and publish this our last Will and Testament, hereby revoking all former wills by us at any time heretofore made. After the payment of our just debts and funeral charges, we bequeath and devise as follows:

To Mr. Ward, our forceful and persuasive submaster, we bequeath a New 1939 Ford car to relieve the burden of his fellow teachers who are the constant victims of his wagging thumb.

To Miss Allen, commanding officer of the corridors, and custodian of 213 and adjacent stairways, we leave a set of rubber, sound-proof stair pads, to further guarantee the peace and quiet of 213 from noisy vociferous students.

To Mr. Nottenburg, we leave the pleasant, but perhaps tiring, job of printing that great piece of world, renowned literature, THE MIRROR.

To Robert Mollica, we leave what we know will be a prosperous and successful future selling those super-charge's of the highways for which there is a large market and which are widely sought by antique dealers from Maine to California.

To George Wheeler, the demon of the cindered way, the idol of the weaker sex, and the human phonograph, we bequeath a pair of winged track shoes to further insure a successful future in some well-known college.

To Mr. Woodman, we leave a large farm, with plenty of fertile land, deep in the Kentucky Mountains, where he may further advance his theories on Economic Geography in perfect peace and quiet.

To Earl MacDougall, our penny-pinching grasping Business Manager, we bequeath a position in some large bank to keep the pangs of loneliness from overcoming him.

To The Younger Set, the belittled Juniors, we leave, regretfully, all the honor, dignity, and superiority which is supposed to go hand in hand with the magic title of Senior.

To Mr. Curran, the dignified gentleman in 208, with the perpetual blush, we leave a brand new set of matched golf clubs with the hopes that some day he may have a streak of good luck and find himself with a total score that is less than 100 for 18 holes.

To James Fenton, the Clark Gable of the Senior Class, we bequeath a year's supply of razor blades to prevent a re-occurrence of that little incident, which occurred a short while ago, when a wee bit of fuzz overgrew on his upper lip.

To Mr. Goodrich, our capable and efficient principal who has been indispensable in guiding us through the last critical years of scholastic careers, we leave our hopes that some day there may be enough wings added to his school so that he won't have to spend his entire summers trying to find choice places in the coal bin for the knowledge-thirsty throngs which grow larger every year.

To Raymond McCarthy, who, we hear has been offered a steady job on the Boston Bruins, as an ice scraper, we leave a certain middle-sized, sweet-voiced Senior to whom he may devote all his spare time (if there is any) after he completes his day's work.

To Miss Burgess, our most capable instructor of the fine arts, we leave a group of eager, art-loving and ambitious Juniors who seek art instead of the two easy points, and to whom she may impart all her pent-up knowledge of the works of the great painters.

To Mr. Leary, the perfect prospect for a guaranteed hair stimulant and our most capable coach, we leave a group of small but athletic Juniors and Sophomores to whom he may put all his endeavor towards building teams which will make us justly proud to be Alumni of Waltham High.

We hereby nominate and appoint Miss Allen, Mr. Mitchell, and Mr. Roche, all of Waltham, County of Middlesex, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, as co-executors of this, our last Will and Testament, and we hereby direct said Executors to pay all our just debts, funeral expenses, costs of administration, and inheritance taxes out of our estate, and we hereby request that they be exempt from furnishing any surety or sureties on their official bonds.

In testimony whereof we hereunto set our hand and seal and publish and declare this to be our last Will and Testament, in the presence of the Witnesses named below, this first day of June, A. D. 1939.

Signed—The Class of 1939
—by Richard Storer.

Signed, sealed, and published by the said Class of 1939 as and for their last Will and Testament, in the presence of us, who at their request, and in their presence, and in the presence of each other, have subscribed our names as witnesses thereto.

CODICIL TO THE LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF THE CLASS OF 1939

To Whom It May Concern:?

Know all men by these presents that we, the Class of 1939, being of sound and disposing mind and memory, and wishing to direct in what manner our estate shall be disposed of after our decease, do make and publish this codicil to our last Will and Testament dated June 1, 1939, hereby ratifying and confirming said Will in all respects except as changes by this instrument.

We hereby mominate and appoint Genieve Joslyn to be the Executrix of this, the Codicil to our last Will and Testament and we hereby request that she be exempt from furnishing any surety or sureties on her official bond.

To Harris Greene, the most studious boy of the Senior Class, and the capable Editor-in-Chief of the Mirror, we bequeath a large roll of good, strong mending tape to keep those much needed sources of information, his trusty text books, from which he drains his knowledge, from falling apart before he completes his full scholastic career.

To Jeanne Blanchard, the most studious girl of the Senior Class, we leave a good strong pencil sharpener, which we suggest she save to sharpen up her wits when she feels her knowledge is waning.

To Fred Bevins, the Jesse James of the Senior Class, who, it is rumored, is deep in the process of reformation, we leave a pair of staunch handcuffs, which we suggest he use to curb any desire he might have to go back to his former occupation.

To Robert Sullivan, the Lucius Beebe of the Senior Class, commonly known as the best dressed, we leave a genuine, 4-carat, tin-plated, tie pin, which is, in our estimation, the only missing link in his otherwise immaculate appearance.

To William Foley, the big noise and the Fred Allen of the Senior Class, we bequest a paper mask, which we suggest he put to humoring the inmates at the estate on Trapelo Road, more commonly known as the Institution for the Mentally Unbalanced.

To Justine Smith, our only delegate in the Social Register, we leave a 1939 Tudor Austin, which we believe is a dire necessity if she wishes to keep the good will of her many fans and always to remain a prominent figure in the annals of Society.

To Philip Caminiti, the Charles Atlas of Walham High, whose departure is sure to cause the coaches to shed a tear, we leave a large box of wholesome, healthy, invigorating Wheaties, which are widely used and endorsed by world-famous athletes and which we suggest, he eat every morning for breakfast to keep up that good work which won him the title of the most athletic boy.

To Ruth Greenway, adjudged both the most popular in the Senior Class and the girl with the Personality Plus, UMPH, to you, we leave what every famous and popular person has, or should have, a stand-in. When Ruth gets tired of being as glamorous as her public expects her to be, she can loaf at home with a grouch, while Ruth Greenway No. 2 carries on.

To Frances Carlson, our official representative to the 1940 Olympics, we leave a good strong, chemically treated jump rope which is endorsed by physical culture addicts all over the world as the best and quickest way to keep a strong, healthy, physique the way it should be kept.

To Clara Viscogliosi, the best dressed girl of the Senior Class, by a large majority, we leave a colorful Irish-linen apron, imported directly from F. W. Woolworth's, to keep her well chosen, extensive, and immaculate wardrobe from becoming soiled during her hard work as a housewife following graduation.

To John Lewis, our future representative on the legitimate stage, we present, with our compliments, and for his own betterment, a book entitled, "Screen Acting", by a well known authority on the subject, with the hope that it will help speed him on his way towards a successful career.

To Genieve Joslyn, the Helen Hayes of Waltham High, we present a minature Silver Screen, with the hope that time will supplant the question mark with the title role her heart most desires.

To Winslow MacDonald, the most popular of the male species in the Class of "39", we leave a genuine Russia leather, monogramed, gold embossed, address book equipped with a most modern and recently invented attachment which automatically reveals the names of the multitudes of his friends, acquaintances, and admirers, which, unaided, he could never hope to remember.

To Harris Greene, the boy most likely to meet Mr. Prosperity around the corner, we leave a genuine alligator skin bill-fold, which has ample space for him to store his expected wealth which goes hand in hand with being a successful business man.

To Robert Sullivan, the Tyrone Power of the Senior Class, we leave a package of tried and tested, blue steel, razor blades, to prevent that 8 o'clock shadow from spoiling his expected chance for a fat movie contract.

To Jeanne Blanchard, the girl who is the most likely to touch the tips of success, we leave a genuine theft-proof bank to which she may deposit any accumulated surplus which is sure to add up to a tidy sum by the time she is 65 or 70. Of course her Social Security would be sufficient.

To Justine Smith, the most glamorous girl of the Senior Class, we leave one authentic autographed picture of that famous personality of the movies, Hedy LaMar, who is, in our opinion, your nearest rival, and only a close second at that.

To Virginia Felt, the "vamper" of the opposite sex, and the girl adjudged the best-looking of the Senior Class, we leave a genuine Max Factor make-up set, imported directly from Hollywood, to keep up and maintain that lovely appearance which is sure to grow less attractive as the years roll on.

In testimony whereof we hereunto set our hand and seal and publish and declare this to be the Codicil to our last Will and Testament, in the presence of the Witnesses named below, this seventh day of June, A. D., 1939.

Class Prophecy

Barney Shaw wasn't even worried. . . . . that's why he took plenty of time leaving his typewriter and making his way toward the city desk and the editor of the Boston "World-News" . . . . Shaw didn't even bother to knock on the door marked "City-Editor—H. Carl Greene", but slammed the door violently, and dropped into a leather chair to face the youngest news-Mogul in the country. . . . . The latter was medium-done on height, had a hair-cut on the thirteenth of every month, and was, at present, coaxing a few lip-ticklers to mature into a mustache. . . . . The subject of Shaw's lucubrations looked up from his desk and regarded the young reporter quietly, superciliously. . . . . Barney knew H. C. had something on the ball when he looked at him like this - - - but he moved nary a nerve. . . . . You see, Barney knew lots about the man before him - - - lots that the world of journalism wasn't even aware of. . . . . Readers of Greene's novels and the "World-News" heard that he wore lavender silk pajamas, smoked with an ivory cigarette holder, and always had a marshmallow sundae for breakfast, but Barney knew this was the bunk . . . just publicity appeal to stamp a mark of eccentric genius on the man with the "pen technique". . . . . Uh huh, Barney liked his boss, and knew that he wouldn't be writer of Boston's most popular column if it weren't for H. Carl Greene.

The city-editor, on the other hand, was torn between a friendly affection for the reporter and a violent ambition to give him the well-known "walking ticket" . . . . For Barney's official position on the news sheet was "dirt-digger-deluxe", and his widely read column, "Here's Mud In Your Eye", was the cause of more slander and libel suits than any similar "after-dark pen production" on the news market. . . . . Where Barney gathered his scandalous and "slanderlous" leads, the editor never knew, all he knew was that Barney's write-ups sold more papers and caused more court procedures than those in any other paper.

"You wanted to see me, chief?"

"Yeh, Barney, I wanted to see you . . . about a little matter of ten thousand dollars. . . . . I didn't mind when you cracked in your column that fan-dancer Ruth Thompson managed her own ostrich farm to grow bigger and better feathers for her fans . . . . or when you published that Davis, the biggest "boss" politician this side of the D. C., was known to intimates as "Stinky" . . . . No, Barney, that was all the O. K. side . . . . even when I had to pay plenty for both, but when you come to the point of printing that George "Flash" Wheeler, the watta-man of every track meet in the country, has a forty-eight name enrolment on his "promised" list . . . one from every state . . . THAT takes the punch, kid! . . . . Can't you get it through that thick skull of yours that women like Marjorie Glass, Barbara Whidden, Rose Lazzero, Lois Butler, Jean Elder, and Marguerite Henry - - - names that certify the most photographed models in the country, aren't going to stand for any report that they belong to anyone's femme-jam! . . . . And that little notation is costing ME just seven grand notes . . . as for the other three thousand, we'll undoubtedly have to pay that to singer Lilly Mansfield since you have nominated her singing as a swell theme song for the McGovern, McGuigan, McGovern Gurgle-Gurgle Mouth Wash program. . . . . You'll be running this paper into bankruptcy as well as yourself out of a job, Shaw, if you don't clean up that column of yours! . . . . Now get out, and go back to your snooping, but keep that sheet of yours newsy but not naughty!"

Barney had remained silent throughout the entire barrage from his employer, but mumbled incoherently about keeping a "dirt" column "clean" as he made his way back to the desk in the corner of the busy cityroom.

"Well, well, if it isn't the ol' hash-slinger . . . H'ya, Shaw. How's the mud business?"

Bein' slung right in your direction, Mac, me lad." Barney was flippant but friendly with MacDougall, the Bonny Scotchman who sat leisurely in the Shaw swivel-back. "Got any courtroom scoops for the column, fellah?"

"A couple," answered the lawyer, "right from the judge's chambers . . . . but remember, newshound, you're to have amnesia when it comes to knowing where you got this information, and you might give me a plug on the write-ups of that Sardi-McGarvie divorce trial."

"Sure enough, Mac, but how about those flashes? I'll need 'em for the late edition." . . . . Barney was all set with pencil and paper, for these MacDougall stories were right off the griddle, and were usually hot enough to burn right through the feature column to a front page article.

"Well, biggest news comes to us that Newall "Hotfoot" Crolius has been under the usual one-two at headquarters, and finally put the ol' bee on the rest of the Collura mob. . . . . And do you know, Shaw, he put the finger on everyone of the gang . . . "Bad Man" Quirk, "Gargantua" Tummenelli, "Dimples" Pound, "Slugger" Hoarde, and "Trigger Pete" Curran, and even "Dynamo Tommy" himself has been numbered up. . . . . No, they won't be crashing the Old Ladies' Home parties in a hurry."

Barney made his notations quickly, thanked the lawman for his latest edition to the "Mud In Your Eye" report, and added, "What's the story on the Goulding-artist case? . . . . I think she'll collect, don't you?" the reporter inquired thoughfully.

"Perhaps you're right," murmured Mac with a peculiar gleam in his eyes, "but I know very definitely that whatever it is, it won't be much, . . . you can't, so help me, get blood from a turnip!"

"Just what was the trouble with the portrait?" Shaw was cleverly submerging into the scandalous for a tasty bit.

The lawyer grinned, "Seems as if this artist, Lunny his name is, was originally a landscape painter, and being always the "artiste" landscaped a few additional inches on the lady's left ankle. . . . So La Diana is suing!" . . . .

A moment or so later when MacDougall and his ticklish "brr's" had departed, Barney was ready to drop a line or three from his scoop pad on to the typewriter keys for his column edition of the after-dark publication. . . . . He rolled the paper in, typed out "Here's Mud In Your Eye," and gave himself a by-line. . . . . Then, his mind scooped up the slices of tasty tidbits he had collected, put them into words, and the column read back:

"Biggest hit of the present sixty seconds on Broadway is written, produced, and cast with local talent. The show is "No Man Has Eevrything" or "Playing the Field is the Sensible Solution," honors done by Greg "Swede" Sarmanian, with G. Pomeroy, Esq. at the stage wheel. Genieve Joslyn attempts to prove during the entire first two acts that hero Johnny Lewis is the "man that hasn't got everything," but fails completely in the last act to fall into the usual clinch. Supporting roles go to Helen Maniace and Warren Morse, who, we prophesy, will be ring-mates before the last grapefruit is presented to the cast . . . which shouldn't be long now. . . . . In times of change like these, when all our institutions are being questioned, it is a comfort for those of the book-wormish variety to look back with no small degree of nostalgia upon the annual convention of deans here in Mass. state, and this year's crop of knowledge is represented in the forms of Dean Edmund Joyal of the School of Mattress Testing, Deans Geraldine Nichols, Harriet Orleans, and James Fenton from the College of Misapplied Sciences, together with Dean Douglas MacArthur of the Cox College for Heels, Charles Furbush, vice dean of Woo-Men Institute, Tony Bonica, Associate Dean of Cauliflower Ear University, and Kenneth Armstrong, K. K. (kute kid), representing Chump Infirmary. . . . . Dots, 'n guess what! . . . . Mayo Darling, of the Fancier Foundations for Freighty Females millions, has recently purchased the proverbial "little white house with little green blinds" for his "betterhalf," Elizabeth. . . . . Just a little gift from one Darling to another! . . . . The Jumping Jodphurs Equestrian Academy, hoity-toity riding school for fearless femmes, is managed by the prize-winning horsewoman, Mary Rhodes. Students interested in conquering the horse-flesh are given instructions by fillies Gately, Hathorne, Walsh, Littlefield, Morrow, King, and Merino. . . and are the boys taking the bounce! . . . . Latest addition to the book mart is "My Diet" or "I'll Start Tomorrow" written and edited by Ruth S. Greenway and R. Jarvis Mollica. . . . . And while on the subject of reading, we'll mention some of the BETTER literature on the "What Boston Isn't Reading" list. . . . . "A Roundabout Way of Expressing Affection" by Richard "Hug Me" Storer, and "Kilts" written by Ruth Sinclair as a Scotchman's apology for wearing short skirts. . . . . "Kentuckey Kernel" or "Corn Liquor" has been completed by Mazur and Holicker and reviewed by Ernest Jones, that wet blanket critic that soaks up everything he touches. . . . . So go the literati, but from MY little, black book comes the report that the Johnson, Johnson, and Johnson Detective Agency, home of the Sweden Yard, is now working with a complete Dick Tracy disguise outfit. It would, however, be practically impossible for them to travel incognito, for even through Balkan beards we'd recognize that total expanse of Scandanavian dead-pans.

Ernest L. Barlow, of the Barlow Garter Millions, will open a new theatre in Scollay Square next month with a stage production that we bet will provide the biggest kick since the depression. Barlow states for publicity purposes that the show will be "better than bundling on cold winter nights - - - and lots more fun!" . . . . "Bubbles" Barry, Polly Foster, "Rosie" Ciarletta, Jean Hubley, Pearl Walker, and "Toots" Mann will be featured in the front line of the "Barlow Beautified Babes." . . . . Dots 'n dashes from the Pacific Coast. . . . . We afford a hitherto secret glimpse into the backstage regions of the moviedom profession. . . . . Flicker star Gloriann shattered all illusions of her supposedly glamored past when she became the ball and chain of actor Luigi Dangio yesterday. It appears that the black-haired beauty HAS a last name, is NOT Polynesian, speaks English fluently, and is the daughter of Joseph Cataldo of Waltham. Dangio made a statement to the press that he and his wife met in the trees during the filming of "Tarzan Meets A Movie Star."

By way of the high seas! . . . . Officers aboard the S. S. Heartbreaker, now anchored off the coast of Switzerland, recently sponsored a contest to determine just how popular their sailors were on shore leave. To Second-lieutenant Dan Guiney went the title of Heart Throb Number 1, and ensigns "Popeye" Dwyer, Dick Dion, and Dan Callahan also came in the money. First mate Herb Rand, however, was presented with the booby prize, because he's still writing letters to that certain someone in his home town. . . . . The biggest bump to hit the literary world lately is the appearance of a very tall fellow, with soulful eyes, and the dirtiest straw hat we've ever seen. His name is William Cail, and he has the oddest job we know of - - - that of conducting a centurian column for Editor Sam Sabetti of the Waltham "Peek-A-Boo." . . . . Mr. C. "Chicken" Chittick, famed chicken tamer with the Brannelly-Chute Circus, was invited by President Ruth DeVenne of the local womens' Knit-Wit Club to lecture on his daring adventures. "Well, I wouldn't know how to lecture," chuckled Chittick - - - "but I can imitate birds." . . . . "That'll be perfectly all right," put in Vice-President Elsie Lukens, "and I'll advise all the ladies to leave THEIR birds at home." . . . . Now, I ask you, if some "tomatoes" aren't over-ripe! . . . . A few "hot" sketches: Would-be gambler Joe Petrowski when he gets a good poker hand laughs so long and loud everyone knows it. . . . . Seymore Silver began his career as small town gigolo as the writer of love letters for very young ladies. . . . . The absent-minded Professor Carl Carter of T. N. T. University, shocked students in his "Why Are Pinks Pink?" class yesterday upon appearing in those red, flannel things that grandpaw used to wear. The little man laughed, and said, "I'm sorry. It's just that I'm SO absent-minded! . . . . Today students Mary Aquilia, Jimmy O'Conner, Mary Panda, Ralph Rood, Anita Begin, Tony Biundo, and Art Keith failed to appear at their daily class with Carter. The "prof" received a note from the group saying, "We're sorry. It's just that we're SO absent-minded! . .

WALTHAM HIGH SCHOOL

From President Gordon Skakle of the Waltham Chamber of Commerce comes a report that the thriving little community will erect a monument on the Waltham Common to that symbol of the All-American boy . . . . the drug-store cowboy . . . . . The statue was posed for by ex-gridiron star Phil Caminiti of that city. . . . . Today marked the grand opening of the William P. Foley Asylum for Aged and Decayed Punsters. The building, as well as Director Foley, was duly christened at opening exercises with the remains of slightly putrified tomatoes. . . . . The enrolment in the A. A. D. P. is expected to be tremendous, according to the statement issued by Assistant Directors Archdeacon, Fran Rogers, Herb Benson, Betts O'Toole, Teresa Ristuccia, and Archie McPherson. . . . . In the groove! . . . . Believe it or so what fans should be interested to know that the Lenny Hartnett swing outfit is composed of "Slushpump Ray" Leach, "Big Dan" Gibbs, "Ivory Ickie" Bob Belliveau, Allen "Horny" Garber, Dave "Hot Lips" Warner, Al "Sliver Sucker" Wolk, and vocalist Jessie Gebow. Larrys Stanley and Hendriken were the composers of "Down In The Cornfield," theme for Hartnett and his "Corn Cobs" . . . . That perennial sophomore, Ignatius Gangi, has again been voted the best looking, best dressed, most popular, most studious, and boy most likely to succeed for the fifth successive year at D'Orazzio's Dunce Academy. . . . Local boy makes good!

The O'Neils have been having a circus . . . . we mean that literally as well as figuratively! Thomas E. and Tom J. recently opened their Woo-Woo Rodeo in Pintabona's Pididdle Park, Neb., and yesterday's performance went smoothly until a new baton act was introduced with the Bowman Band. "Do" Butterfield, "Re" Griffin, and "Me" Martin twirled and threw their silver batons. Showhorse "Amnesia," ridden bareback by Esther O'Neil, didn't like the batons, and waltzed into a gas station, gracefully knocking over three pumps with his rear axle. . . . . The law firm of Paradis, Parisi, and Patrick have advertised their business motto as "A fool and his money are soon parted . . . see definition of alimony" . . . . Campus Chatter: "Civilization," says Professor Charles Rhodes of Mixed Nuts "Prep" School, "is an upward tendency that has enabled mankind to perfect that "Raw, Raw" known as the college cheer" . . . . Co-eds Muriel Medina, Clara Viscogliosi, Betty Healy, Mary Dunleavy, and Ginny Towne of Uhlin University, Utah, offer the remark that if Joe College can't buy his pants complete with knee-bags, he has 'em built in! . . . . Sprightly as springtime are the new shoe styles designed by Minnette Berkowitz for the George Ford "Flatter Flat Feet" Shoe Concern. If you've GOT to have flat feet, flatter your flattened footsies with Ford's! . . . . Hint to patrolmen Robert Dion, Pete Kotsifas, Gil Melanson, Don Washburn, and Dayton Barrows.

. . . . School-girls in the country may not know all the historic dates they might, but they can rattle off the pictures that sophisticate Joe Albanese has starred in! At the recent preview of "There's Many A Wreck 'Neath A New Coat of Paint," Albanese's latest heart-throb vehicle, socialite Elinor Willis Giardina was heard to remark, "Albanese - - - m-mm-mmm, when he smiles in that dashing way of his, I could just swoon!" . . . . When the S. S. Sea Sick arrived in Boston harbor from New York this morn, the reporter saw vivid proof of a slightly rough trip . . . in more ways than one! The "cargo" contained well-done (but decidedly raw in places) acts of "Who Takes Care of the Caretakers Daughter While the Caretaker's Busy Taking Care?" the new drah-ma that will open in town Friday. . . . . There seemed to be a good deal of conflab in deciding just who were the stars of the show. Captain Bob Saumsiegle had a goodly amount of difficulty in arranging the list of those that would sit at his table, but "Gerry" Quinlan, blonde protagonist of the performance was at the Captain's right; next to her was the ex-Mrs. Joseph Papa, again Wanda Jollatta of stage reknown; and next to her was Norma Cantwell, reported as being the "other angle" in that Margaret Foley-Roy Echman triangle. The remaining seats at the table of honor were filled by "Vic" Cimino, Dot Powers, Kay Venuti, Margy Zoehler, and Polly Ramsay, all members of the cast that you'll see in this new Priscilla Tyler Production. . . . . "Gussie" Schools, also riding the waves with the dramatic outfit, commented on her trip with "I didn't see much of the boat, 'cause I traveled most of the way over the rail!" . . . . We quote from the Life and Letters of Ernest Ansara: "January 4, Snowin'. Can't go huntin' . . . . January 5, still snowin'. Can't go huntin' . . . . January 6, Still snowin'. Shot grandpaw". . . . Second-story man "Handy Andy" Andrews, renowned King of the Underworld (sometimes referred to as Warrendale), was picked up by police today after the Killer-Diller's sticky fingerprints were found on the safe of the Safford Sweete Shoppe. Poor Andy had been indulging in his pet passion . . . lollipops!

A group of femmes in the local social whirl namely: Valerie Aylsworth, Louise Farese, Theresa Bahros, Ruth Moore, Hazel Pike, Phyllis Sharpe, and June Richardson instigated the foundation of the Bohunk Ballroom for Bashful Boys. . . . . You males that are so proficient at TOE dancing should definitely (and we DO mean definitely) make application. . . . . Instructor Evelyn Patterson of the College of Unscientific Observations, asked the question "What is dust?" . . . . Bright student Ann Murphy answered, "Dust is mud with the juice squeezed out" . . . . Undertaker James Shields is reported as being "that certain way" about his chum-about-the-morgue, Regina Ring. . . . . Miss R, by the by, reads "True Love Stories" at her mortuary work. Life, she thinks, is SO romantic! . . . . The local state has several representatives to that bevy of unsung heroes and heroines that never appear before the moviedom camera; namely, Marjorie Daniels, that recently designed the gowns for Edna Banis in the picture "Daydreams of Tillie, the Typist" in which she is starred with Dick Flynn. Then there is Ethel Gibson, who is official "facemaker" at the Franklin-Milesky Studios. Ethel has glamored-up such G. G.'s (glamor girls) as Patricia Whitten, Myrna Huntley, Edith Winberg, Phyllis True, and Marian Colson. . . . . It was the socially-prominent Irene McCourt-VinLeBlanc wedding. . . . . The sky was blue. The birds twittered. The wedding march pealed out. They had been married. He looked happy, she looked shy. The little lady had now cancelled the renewal of her hunting license. . . . . The Doe-Doore Publishing Company put a new edition of "Great Poems of The Day" on their selling list. Perhaps the most touchingly beautiful rhyme was that by Edris Hill, which reads:

"Someone spilled the sausage wurst
A yellow dog got there first
He grabbed the sausage like a hog,
Just 'nother case of dog eats dog."

Stylist Anita Weiner will present her annual modes in fashion in the Riseberg Silver Salon next month with Boston's most beautiful models, Betty Hayden, Virginia Felt, Ruth Merklee, Eunice Ohlsen, Viola Studley, and Kay St. Germaine on display. The women will be at the salon to see the gowns, but many a man will be paying for them, so we warn the poor unfortunates. . . . . Cardshark Howie Woodbury has just published another book, "Etiquette At the Card Table," or "No Penalties Attached," and in it he warns the feminine bridge fan to take it for granted that the man she married still has as much common sense as on the day he selected her as his wife. Virginia Cronin's humorous pictures in this little volume illustrate the evils of the card game, or "How Not to Play Bridge!"

Norman Gaudet, who has been studying piano abroad, will soon return to make his American debut and to see Elaine Edgar. The musical world predicts their marriage as soon as he accepts the Pottle Piano Company's offer as head piano tuner. . . . . A few of "the mob" are "taking a ride" to the tune of "If I Had the Wings of An Angel" since Sheriff Ed Wallace caught up with them. Ray Morley took some bread from a baker (stealing dough again), Pearl Marcou was seen beating up an egg, and Bill Gorgone has been stealing rings from a bell. Naughty, naughty, kiddies! . . . . Latest edition to the "Cotton Pickings," Broadway musical, are Norma Bearisto, Ruth Wellman, Norma Benson, Virginia Stevens, Catherine Tewksbury, Nancy Cafarella, Mary Cincotta, and Olive Dougherty. We refer, of course, to the chorus line. . . . . Nice work if you can get it! Dave Krongard has opened a learn-how-to-drive-in-one-easy-lesson station on the Norumbega Tower road for feminine license hopefuls. . . . The auto school provides a "tomato can on wheels" and a choice of Bill Pendergast, Orazio Arena, Norman Hoar, Don Westhaver, and Carl Josephson as instructors.

. . . . Applicants are also provided with roller skates. . . . . A new comic strip, "The Smith Family - - - and How It Grew" will be featured on the fun page of the "World-News" next week, and we think that the Bonner, Jacob, Brennan collaboration really has something here. We suspect that the characters are fashioned after the lives of Florence, Herb, and Larry, three eminent stage personalities. The subject, however, is one on the side of the Lord, for, indeed, He must have loved the name to place such a number with us!

We did a bit of ear-unbuttoning on hospital premises last eve, and behind one of the sick-room doors discovered Tony Abramo, who insists his pneumonia was decidedly provoked by his hospital attire that provided an over-dose of ventilation. . . . . But Tony was doing all right, being waited on hand and foot by "proby" nurses Mary Collins, Mildred Slaunwhite, Helen Pederson, Mabel Read, and Vivian Thomas. . . . . And some guys have all the luck - - - even with pneumonia! . . . . The hospital records read "Thomas Leonard - - - cuts and bruises" . . . . but we'd say "victim of circumstances." It appears that poor Tom was shuffling the pasteboards in a "Not According to Hoyle" bridge foursome with the missus (the ex-Alma Thurber), while Al and Verla (Sloper) Fiorelli made up the other couple. Because his thumb was on the ace of spades, he led, and so did Alma. Tom found out weeks later that he had re-negged. Family misunderstandings can usually, we reckon, be traced to the card table!

In his book "Oh, You Funny Man" a biography of Robert Sullivan by Don Felt, the author recalls the supposedly authentic account of the life of Mr. S, provided by himself. "I was born," claims Sullivan, "on the seventh hill of Rome in the year 1865, wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in 1877, introduced the lawnmower into Sahara Desert civilization in 1883, died in 1884, and was buried in Grant's Tomb." . . . . Warren Wentworth, author of "What Men Think About Women—or Do They?" was recently reported seen passing through Watertown with his wife, the former Vera Bennett, en route to Germany. They plan to leave the baby in a North Station locker as they fear Warren Jr. might develop a Hitler complex. They will pedal their way to Berlin a-top a tandem. . . . . Sam Stroum, a student at the Dan D. Lion Academy, just captured the fish-swallowing crown from co-ed Violet Rudolph. After not only catching but downing the "three little fishes from the iddy, biddy pool," the champ remarked, "A bit heavy on the epiglottis," and then did a fade-out. . . . . The Tel. and Tel. Company now employs Harriette Gordon, Dot Rollins, Estelle Harris, Cora Height, Rose Olivo, Betty McAdoo, and Kay Trainor, the "What's YOUR number?" girls. . . .

On a recent nation-wide radio popularity poll, the Pantanella Sisters "Sixty Minutes of Beauty" program rated tops. The beautiful voice of the beautiful Margaret Hicks, soprano, combining with the beautiful baritone of Fred Brown, won the beautiful award for this beauty preparation and Station ZAIA. . . . . It's pointedly evident that "stenog" Norma Turner's engagement to her employer was known only to the majority population of Boston. . . . . As for the boss, Johnny "Gigilo" Ahern, he labored under the impression that it was all a happy friendship! There'll undoubtedly be fireworks, 'cause attorney Darwin Wilder has been called in to "serve the hash" on Mr. A! Chin up, eyes forward, Johnny, me lad. We know how it is! . . . . Forrest Higgins, formerly the spark plug in the Hayes, Eagan, and Hayes Motorcycle Industry, has left that concern to enter the ministry. Mr. Higgins, we hear, was recently criticized by his elder professioners for exclaiming to the trials and tribulations of his parishioners with a Whew-w-w and not a tsk! tsk! tsk! . . . Arctic explorer Maurice Desisto was greeted upon his return to Waltham by Mayor and Mrs. Allen Glidden (nee June Taylor), and we noted several flattering varied comments were passed on the little beard sprouted by the North Pole adventurer. The most noticeable, however, was from newsboy Tony Gullotti, who nudged his companions and said, "Look, Columbus!" . . . . Authors of "If He Could Only Cook," Helen Abelli, Alice Buckley, and Margaret Crawford state in the preface of the book that "love is a man's insane desire to become a woman's meal ticket!" . . . . So now I know! . . . . Do you feel logy, run-down? Do your most vital digestive juices flow at a rate of four quarts a day? . . . . If so, we recommend "Lively, Little Liver Pills" produced from the magic caldron of the makers, Eleanor Lombardi, Helen Staves, and Frances Mahoney.

Teletype typings. . . . . The "Barbara Bradford," a pleasure yacht named by its owner Salvi Albert for his fiancee, just ran on the rocks off Long Island Sound. Although the engagement party on board was literally "broken up," everyone was saved! Hazel Dunbrack, Mary Enos, James Carney, Pearl Powers, Edna Banks, Marjorie Myshrall, and Phil Carrigan were brought to safety by Captain Fran McGowan, of the fishing launch "Worm Wrangling On the Waves." . . . . Another vote for terra firma! . . . . The movie of the month appears to be "The Life of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning," an almost poetic production written by Jeanne Blanchard. You'll cry at the touching performance of Cora Day as Elizabeth, and admire the fine work done by Daniel Healy as Browning. Betty Cotter, the Rose Casellas, Delta Grant, Hazel Anderson, and Marian Matthews add beauty to this 20th Century Campana-Caminiti film. . . . John LaRosa, proprietor of the Barbarous Bavarian Barber Shop, located within the "World-News" building, persuaded society editor Marjorie Haverstock to try his "Snappy-Snippy Shingle," that he has fashioned with the onward and upward trend in hairstyles. Mr. LaRosa clapped and clipped snapped and snipped, and the society editor, consequently, has been forced into "hermitage" with the nearest thing to a "cannonball" that we've seen yet! . . . . The latest dictionary on the market is written by Joseph Freeman. Concerning the comparison of the word "dead," the "dic" gives the definition by saying "dead" . . . without life. . . . "Deader" . . . see Lincoln. . . . "Deadest" . . . Pompeii. . . . . Report has come in from Michalsen Square Stadium in Raimey Valley, South Dakota, where the biggest glove match of the year has just been fought. . . . . "Handsome George" Krinoples matted opponent "Curly Ray" McCarthy after a two-minute exhibition of fisticuffs. Krinoples wore his usual catcher's mask to protect his baby-blue eyes from becoming blackened, and Slugger Ray appeared with his tresses curled in a Katsogianis coiffure, the most stunning seen on the mat all season! . . . . Since I made these notes on my scoop sheet, I picked up a choice bit concerning the manner in which man-about-town Pat Devlin paid up his bet with actress Georgia Thurston on that Krinoples-McCarthy bout, but in-as-much-as the column has gone to press, and I can't spell the word "osculation" anyhow, I'm afraid you'll never know the tale!

We mourn the passing on of financier John Kokidko. Although he wore a straw hat year-round and floppy socks, he was good, kind, and trusted his wife's knowledge of mushrooms. His widow is the former Ruth Foley. . . . . Yokel Fred Gardiner, currently visiting the Big City from his glorified garlic (or shall I say onion?) farm, supped at "Damorte's Dirty Spoon" last night, and was heard to say to the waiter, "Say, there ain't no turtle in this soup," to which the waiter snapped back, "No, and if you'll look closely, you'll see there ain't no horse in that horse radish, either." . . . . . The reporter is proud to announce that a former fellow classmate, Fred M. Bevins, has entered the priesthood. Fred, a fine, God-fearnig boy, was always the sort you'd say went about singing of Jacob and the golden stairs. . . . . Proprietor of the "Doggone-it School for Dawgs," Frank Wians, whined a soulful plea to Helen Corcoran last eve, and the little lady threw all her career plans to the merry bow-wows. But it won't be long before Mr. W. will be a permanent boarder in the matrimonial doghouse with thousands of other unfortunate males. . . . . The Massachusetts A. A. will send Frances Carlson, Isabel Martin, Laura Ferro, and Jimmy Delaney as her sport representatives to Olympland this spring to compete for world honors. . . . . Because it's spring (tra-la), Mr. Fran Doherty has published in his latest magazine article "Are You A man . . . And If So Why Not Do Something About It?" the fact that the species of man is severed into three distinct groups; namely, bachelors, husbands, and widowers. "The bachelor," says Mr. Doherty, "is just a mass of obstinacy, while the husband has either been victimized and captured as a prisoner, or else taken as a consolation prize. The widower, however, must, indeed, be on the side of the Lord" . . . . Ahmen! . . . . "Ginger Hammond, just five feet of cheer-temper for Pittsley University during the gridiron season, brightly remarked that she thought scrub teams were formed to keep the varsity players clean.

Tom Maher, antagonist of the machine age, claims, "Machines, so what? . . . . Love is still made by hand!" . . . . Charles Woodbury, who speaks so often on the Boston Common, was recently asked to speak at the graduation exercises of O'Reilly College. Mr. Woodbury informed the studes, "You'll never amount to much. That thing called success comes to one man in every proverbial thousand . . . but, of course, if you want to TRY . . . that's YOUR business!" Students Fran Punzo, Lillian Sheridan, Caroline Ferrasi, and Antionette Demeo concluded that Mr. Woodbury was either a communist . . . or a Republican! . . . Teacher of mathematics at Waltham High, Norma Bianconi, says that most boys can't add, but they certainly can distract! . . . . Title-holder of the Miss Waltham contest, lovely Peggy Shriner, is nicknamed by her current Big Moment, Ralph Malmgren, "Hinges," because she's something to a-dore!

Philosopher Frank Mase was heard making an observation of the vast popularity of Ferdinand with "The little bull has certainly gone a long way!" . . . Now didn't we TELL you so! . . . Did I ever tell you about my conversation with President Winslow MacDonald? . . . . No? . . . . Well, we were both walking our dogs on the White House grounds, and then I saw him (President McDonald, of course!). He was coming along the sidewalk in my direction, and me and my dog came along in his direction, and then we met . . . and I was just SO nervous! . . . . And then the PRESIDENT of the United States said, "Your little dog likes my little dog doesn't your little dog?" . . . . And I said, "Yes! ! !"

With this, Barney concluded his lengthy tirade of naughty, but nice, news notes. He collected his column, now ready to go to press, and yelled for Walley, messenger boy for the "World-News" cityroom.

The boy beneath the crop of blond hair meandered slowly to the reporter's desk, took the papers from Shaw, and grinned maliciously. . . . . "Hey, Barney," he ventured, "complaint number 1001 in the form of some guy named Chuck Edwards is here to see you. . . . . Yeh, an' he says you're another Abe Lincoln - - - always for the peep-hole, by the peep-hole, and through the peep-hole!"

Barney grinned, opened his mouth to reply, but the hurricane of Mr. E's wrath blew in on them. "Just where IS this Barney Shaw?"

"That's it," pointed young Walley.

"YOU - - - Barney Shaw," stormed complaint number 1001. "Why, you CAN'T be - - - You're a- - -why, you're a - - -"

"You're right, Mr. Edwards," answered the scoopster. "Barney Shaw's a WOMAN!"

"Yes, and you're - - - why, I know YOU! . . . You're name's - - -"

"Right again, Chuck! My name's Smith . . . . Justine Smith!"
